The Division of Theatre, housed within the School of the Arts and Design, offers a Master of Arts degree in theatre.

Coursework and stage experience are combined to train well-rounded theatre practitioners who have the ability to function creatively, critically, and skillfully in a variety of theatrical environments. Committed to exceptional theatre performance and excellence in scholarship, the graduate theatre program provides practical as well as academic training for students pursuing careers in professional and educational theatre. Degree concentrations may emphasize acting/directing, design/production, or literary criticism/history.

Successful completion of a professional paper is required for the Master of Arts Degree. The culminating project can be creative, scholarly, or a creative/scholarly hybrid and must meet professional standards. In all projects, a scholarly paper of no less than 45 pages is required. Projects may be selected from such areas as directing, acting, stage management, playwriting, technical direction, design, theatre history, or criticism. With the permission of the faculty, a project may be completed off the Denton campus.
